PAUSE FOR REFLECTION

In Sunday's gospel, the scribes and Pharisees define the woman by her past, by her sin. Their attitude is; that is all there is to her. But Jesus sees her future. He says to her, 'go away and don't sin any more'. They see her past and condemn her. He sees her future and believes in her.

This echoes the Lord's words in Isaiah; 'No need to recall the past. See, I am doing a new deed, can you not see it?' When Jesus believes in her, she sees something new happening in her life, a new future for herself. She comes to know his power in her life. She can begin to say, with Paul, that nothing 'will outweigh the supreme advantage of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord'.

The readings are like a mirror, reflecting back to us our own Baptism journey through life. As we come to know Christ, we come to know what he sees in us. We experience how his belief in us heals our past and opens up our future. We can say with Paul; 'All I want is to know Christ and the power of his resurrection'.
